

Medium — Sourcing Dossier

Method: Firecrawl scrape + map

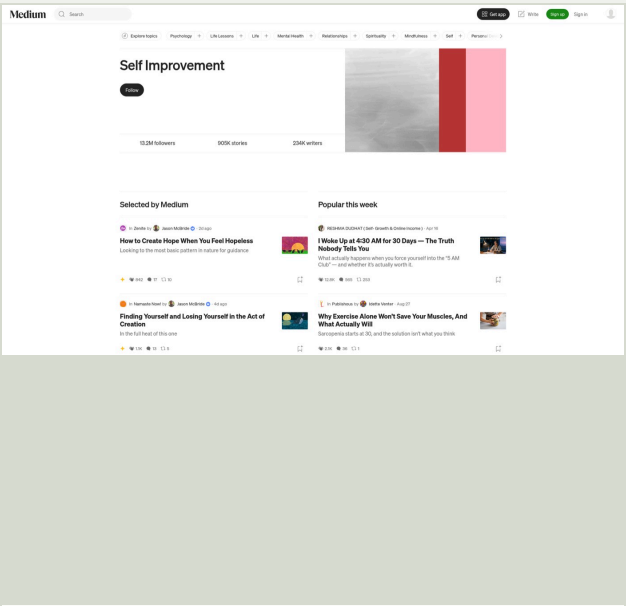

01 Captured Pages

The logged-out homepage, a topic hub used for discovery, and one sourced article's actual reading page — the three page types this workflow touches on every run.

/tag/self-improvement

02 Colour Palette

Pulled from the live homepage's computed styles. Medium's system is deliberately narrow — near-mono core plus a single green accent — which is exactly why the extractor's own confidence score lands high here.

PRIMARY / ACCENT #1A8917 Medium green — logo mark, CTAs	SECONDARY #156D12 Darker green — hover / pressed states	BACKGROUND #F7F4ED Warm paper — page ground	TEXT PRIMARY #242424 Near-black — body copy
LINK #1A73E8 Blue — inline text links only	THEME-COLOR #000000 Mobile browser chrome

- ✓ High-confidence extraction — 92.5% overall (colours 95%, button roles 90%). Unlike a maximalist retail site, Medium's whole visual system is one accent colour against near-neutral ink and paper, so there's little for the detector to misread.

03 Typography

Medium pairs a licensed serif/sans display face, Söhne, for headings with a plain system-font stack for body copy — Söhne isn't on Google Fonts, so the sample below renders in the site's own fallback.

04 Site Structure

Medium's structure is content-type based rather than category-based like a storefront
— the same navigation surfaces stories from thousands of independent publications and authors.

Topic Hubs <code>/tag/{topic}</code> Discovery surface — this workflow's main entry point e.g. self-improvement, psychology, productivity No pagination API — reached via scroll/JS render	Publications <code>medium.com/{pub-name}</code> Editorially curated collections (e.g. Illumination, Publishous) Own masthead, own editorial voice/quality bar Mixed reliability — verify regardless of publication	Author Pages <code>/@handle or {name}.medium.com</code> Independent writers, some with custom subdomains No editorial gate — quality varies writer to writer
Story Pages <code>/ {pub-or-author} / {slug} - {hash}</code> Single article; the actual scrape target Member-only stories show a paywall after ~1 paragraph	Membership Gate Cuts across all content types Member-only flag is per-story, not per-publication 23 of 30 sourced stories in this run were gated	Utility Site-wide Help, Status, About, Careers, Press, Store policy.medium.com — Terms, Privacy, Rules (separate subdomain)

05 Sourcing Results

The actual output of one run of `workflows/source_and_verify_research.md` — candidates surfaced from topic hubs, ranked by claps. "Sources" reflects what each article itself cites, not independent confirmation: per the project's verification rule, anything cited here still has to be checked against the original study or author before it's safe to quote.
